AU REVOIR

This is my last newsletter. At the CEA meetings in Halifax, I will be stepping down as Secretary-Treasurer, to spend more time on research and with my family. Steve Ambler has been nominated to be the new Secretary-Treasurer (see Council Nominees below) and Bob Dimand will be the new Newsletter Editor. I will be continuing as Business Editor of Canadian Public Policy.

There have been many changes at the CEA/ACÉ in recent years. The latest innovation is Werner Antweiler’s new on-line membership management system. Werner’s vision is to create a one-stop shopping portal where individual members can join the association, make address changes, submit papers to the annual conference or to the journal, and so on. Departmental administrators can also make changes on the system, and through their efforts we hope to paint a complete portrait of the academic economics profession in Canada.

The appointment and other information in this newsletter was gathered through Werner’s new database management system. So – thanks to Werner, Peng Huang (who puts this newsletter together) and all of the administrators who regularly take the time to send us the personal news that is most people’s favourite part of the newsletter.

CEA ANNOUNCEMENTS
Council Nominees/ Les candidats du conseil

The CEA Executive Council is, in effect, the Association’s board of directors. The Council approves new spending initiatives, committee appointments, and so on. The Council is made up of twelve members-at-large chosen from the Association, together with the past-president, president, president-elect, vice-president (president-elect-elect), and secretary-treasurer. The members-at-large serve for a three year term, the presidents serve on Council for a total of four years in each of the four presidential roles, and the secretary-treasurer is appointed for a five year (renewable) term.

Every year the new vice-president and four members-at-large are nominated by the CEA nominating committee, drawn from and chosen by the Executive Council. The 2006 committee (nominating members to join the Council in 2007) consisted of Bev Dahlby, Mary MacKinnon, Michael Smart, Gregor Smith, Gérard Gaudet and Frances Woolley (ex-officio). This year’s committee consists of (once again) Michael, Mary, Gérard and Frances, together with president-elect Aloysius Siow, and the new member, Thomas Lemieux. The committee will meet this May at the CEA meetings to choose the 2008 council slate.

If you have colleagues whom you believe would make a strong contribution to the CEA, either as Council members or as President, and would like to suggest their names to this year’s nominating committee, please send me their names at frances_woolley@carleton.ca, or get in touch with any other member of the committee.
The candidates slated to join the Council in 2007 are James Brander (vice-president), Steve Ambler (secretary-treasurer), Kate Cuff, Talan İşcan, Lynda Khalaf, and Sharon Kozicki. Biographies of the candidates follow below. If additional candidates are nominated by the membership, all members will be sent postal ballots and an election will be held: “Nominations of candidates may be made by any five members, submitting a nomination paper signed by themselves and the nominee, to the Secretary-Treasurer no later than March 1 of the year of the election.” If no further nominations are received, the candidates below will be acclaimed at the 2007 Annual General Meeting.

Vice-President: James Brander
James Brander is the Asia Pacific Professor of International Business in the Sauder School of Business at the University of British Columbia UBC). A native of Vancouver, he completed his B.A. in economics at UBC in 1975 and received his Ph.D. from Stanford University in 1979. He then joined the Economics Department at Queen’s University as an Assistant Professor until moving (back) to UBC in 1983 where he has remained since, apart from a sabbatical at the Australian National University in 1989-90. He and his co-author, Barbara Spencer, received the Harry Johnson Award for the best paper published in the Canadian Journal of Economics for 1981. He and Barbara (his wife) were also honored in the February 2000 issue of the Journal of International Economics (JIE) as the authors of the most cited paper ever published up to that time in the JIE. A paper he wrote with Paul Krugman was also 6th on that list. More recently his research interests have focused on natural resources, venture capital finance, and industrial organization. His previous service contributions include a 4-year term (1997-2001) as Managing Editor of the Canadian Journal of Economics and a 4-year term(1999-2003) as Associate Dean of the Sauder School of Business.

Secretary-Treasurer: Steve Ambler
Steve Ambler holds an MSc from the London School of Economics and Political Science and a PhD from Stanford University. He has taught in the Département des sciences économiques at the Université du Québec à Montréal since 1985, and has held visiting positions at the Université de Paris I (Panthéon-Sorbonne), the European University Institute and the Institut für Höhere Studien in Vienna. He is the author of numerous articles in journals such as the Journal of Monetary Economics, the Review of Economics and Statistics, and the Journal of Money, Credit and Banking. He is a past president of the Société canadienne de science économique (1998-1999). He has been an Associate Editor of the Canadian Journal of Economics (1992-1995) and Canadian Public Policy (1998-2003). He is currently on secondment to the Bank of Canada as Special Adviser.

Steve Ambler détient une maîtrise de la London School of Economics and Political Science et un doctorat de l’Université Stanford. Il enseigne depuis 1985 au Département des sciences économiques à l’Université du Québec à Montréal, et il a été professeur invité à l’Université de Paris I (Panthéon-Sorbonne), à l’Institut

Executive Council

Katherine Cuff

Katherine Cuff is an Associate Professor in the Department of Economics at McMaster University. She joined the department in July 2000 after receiving her PhD from Queen’s University where she won the C.A. Curtis Prize for Best Doctoral Thesis in Economics. She also holds an MA in Economics from York University. Katherine is a member of the Canadian Journal of Economics Editorial Advisory Board and associate member of the Centre Interuniversitaire sur le Risque, les Politiques Économiques et l’Emploi (CIRPÉE). She has been actively involved in the Canadian Public Economics Group – organizing the annual meetings held at McMaster in 2005 as well as serving as a member of the scientific committee on several occasions. Katherine’s research interests are in the areas of fiscal federalism and optimal taxation. She has published articles in many journals including the Journal of Public Economics, International Economic Review and the Canadian Journal of Economics.

Talan İşcan

Talan İşcan is Professor of Economics at Dalhousie University. He completed his undergraduate studies in Turkey prior to receiving his Ph.D. in economics from Cornell University in 1994. He has taught at Dalhousie since then, and held visiting positions at Harvard, the IMF and Cornell. He has also taught courses and given lectures in South America, the Caribbean and the Baltic countries. His numerous publications include articles in the Journal of International Economics, Journal of Monetary Economics, and Journal of Money, Credit, and Banking. His main research interests are international economics, macroeconomics and economic development, and he has a penchant for history. He lives in Halifax, with his wife Natàlia, and daughters Lidya and Estel. Further information can be found on Talan’s website at http://myweb.dal.ca/tiscan/.

Lynda Khalaf

Lynda Khalaf is a Professor in the Department of Economics at Carleton University. Professor Khalaf holds a BA and MBA from the American University in Beirut, where she taught mathematics and economics before coming to Canada. She completed her doctorate at Université de Montréal and then moved to Laval where, in 2004, she was appointed to a Canada Research Chair in Environment (Environmental and Financial Econometric Analysis). Professor Khalaf has served on the SSHRC standard research grants committee, the Executive Council of the Société Canadienne de Science Économique, and the Scientific Committees for the Canadian Econometric Study Group, the Society for Computational Economics, and Computational Statistics and Data analysis conferences. Her current research covers econometric issues arising in the formulation, fitting and checking of economic models for environmental and financial analysis, with focus on: exact inference, re-sampling based tests, inference in multivariate models, identification-robust methods, structural stability and specification tests. Her publications include articles in the Journal of Econometrics, the American Journal of Agriculture Economics, the Journal of Business and Economic Statistics, the Journal of Economic Dynamics and Control, and the Journal of Applied Econometrics.

Sharon Kozicki
Sharon Kozicki is a Research Director in the Research Department at the Bank of Canada. Sharon received her BSc and MA degrees from the University of Toronto, and her PhD from the University of California San Diego. After completing her degrees, she worked as an Economist with the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System in Washington DC and later as a Vice President and Economist at the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City. While in these positions, she conducted research and gained valuable experience as an economic forecaster and monetary policy adviser. In January 2006, she returned to Canada and joined the Bank of Canada as a Senior Officer. Her research on topics in the areas of monetary policy, macrofinance, data revisions, and econometrics includes articles published in such journals as the Journal of Monetary Economics, the Journal of Business and Economic Statistics, the Journal of Economic Dynamics and Control, and the Journal of Money, Credit, and Banking. She is an associate editor of Macroeconomic Dynamics and the Journal of Applied Econometrics, is on the Editorial Board of the Journal of Macroeconomics, and has served on the Advisory Council of the Society of Computational Economics.

Le prix commémoratif Doug Purvis
Nous désirons recevoir des propositions de candidats pour la remise du treizième prix annuel qui vise à perpétuer le souvenir de feu Douglas D. Purvis. Ce prix d’une valeur de 10 000 $ récompensera un travail de qualité exceptionnelle consacré à la politique économique canadienne et publié en 2006. Sont admissibles à ce prix, toutes les catégories de publications dans lesquelles paraissent des travaux relatifs à la politique économique canadienne : séries d’articles dans les journaux ou les magazines, livres, articles dans les revues spécialisées, études des gouvernements, y compris les monographies pour les commissions d’enquête parlementaires, autres documents officiels, et rapports d’instituts de recherche. Pour être admissible, le travail doit être du domaine public et traiter principalement, mais pas nécessairement exclusivement, d’une question liée à la politique économique canadienne.
The nominations doivent être reçues d’ici le 15\textsuperscript{e} mars 2007. Veuillez inclure cinq exemplaires du document en question, le nom et l’adresse du proposeur et les coordonnées complètes de la personne en nomination, y compris son affiliation professionnelle. Pour proposer une candidature, la vôtre ou celle de quelqu’un d’autre, ou pour obtenir plus de renseignements, veuillez écrire à : Le prix Purvis, Brian Copeland, Department of Economics, University of British Columbia, 997-1873 East Mall, Vancouver, BC, V6T 1Z1 courriel : copeland@econ.ubc.ca

The Purvis Prize

Nominations are requested for the thirteenth award of an annual prize to honour the memory of the late Douglas D. Purvis. An award of $10,000 is to be presented for a work of excellence relating to Canadian economic policy and published in 2006. The award is open to all forms of written media in which material relevant to Canadian economic policy appears, including a series of articles in newspapers or magazines, books, single articles in scholarly journals, government studies including monographs done for royal commissions, other official documents, and think-tank reports. To be eligible, the material must be in the public domain and primarily, but not necessarily exclusively, related to some issue in Canadian economic policy.

Nominations should be in by 15 March 2007. Include five copies of the nominated piece, name and address of the nominator and full details of the nominee, including affiliation. To submit a nomination of your own or someone else’s work, or to obtain further details, write to: The Purvis Prize, Brian Copeland, Department of Economics, University of British Columbia, 997-1873 East Mall, Vancouver, BC, V6T 1Z1 E-mail: copeland@econ.ubc.ca.

ELECTRONIC PUBLISHING I:
Authors’ rights

The CEA Executive Board has recently approved an updated editorial (copyright) agreement with Blackwell, the publisher of the CJE. As a matter of contract structure, we adopted the “Exclusive License Form,” whereby authors retain copyrights to the article, but assign the association and publisher an exclusive license to publish. We also adopted a twelve month “Embargo” period for published articles. What does this mean?

Authors are encouraged to post their own electronic versions of their papers wherever they want, with a note that the definitive version is available through the CJE website (and through Blackwell-Synergy, Ingenta, or JSTOR, depending on the vintage of the paper). There are some restrictions on the nature of what can be posted:

• During the Embargo period (one year from the date of publication), the posted electronic version cannot be identical to the accepted version. For example, it would be appropriate to post a “final” working paper version, with a link to the CJE for the “definitive” version.

- After the embargo period, and before publication, the author’s final, accepted version of the paper can be posted. However, it is never acceptable to post the CJE-produced (publisher’s) PDF file on your own website. This violates the author’s copyright agreement with the publisher.

Especially in an era with an emphasis on open access, we wish to encourage authors to make their work freely available to the public. The only real restrictions here are: 1) to make sure that the publisher’s PDF is not used; 2) to refrain from posting an exact clone of the published paper during the embargo period; and 3) to provide complete bibliographic credit to the CJE and its publisher.

We encourage all authors to self-archive, and moreover to register their CJE publications with the various meta-databases (indexes).

Note: This is an extract from Dwayne’s longer report on the CJE, which is printed in the November issue of the Journal.

_Dwayne Benjamin_

Editor, Canadian Journal of Economics

ELECTRONIC PUBLISHING II: Results from a pricing experiment

In 2006, for the first time, the Canadian Economics Association made on-line only memberships available to its membership. There was some concern about doing this, because members of the CEA Council believed that people who received a hard copy of the Canadian Journal of Economics would be more likely to read the journal, and hence more likely to put CJE articles on their reading lists, cite CJE articles, submit their best work to the journal – in short, do the things that build the reputation and status of a journal. At the same time, the CEA Council realized that more and more people were accessing the journal on-line, and it was a waste of resources to send out hard copies of the journal unnecessarily.

Taking these two divergent considerations into account, the Council decided upon a one-year experiment: on-line only at the same price as print, available to regular members only (not student, retired or life members). Due to some sort of administrative error, however, a mistake was made in the US pricing – for individuals paying in US dollars, on-line was $5 cheaper than print.

Given these circumstances – no financial incentive for an on-line only subscription, on-line only not available to students, no prompting for the on-line option for renewing members, and so on – we have had a remarkably high take-up for the on-line only option – six percent in the first year. For the US members, who have a financial incentive to subscribe on-line, 11 percent have opted for online only.
What can we take from this? The first is, incentives matter: where on-line only subscriptions are cheaper, the take-up is higher. The second is that some CEA members place a low value on hard copies. Why get up off your chair and walk all the way over to your bookshelf, when the article you need is just a few clicks away?

Electronic delivery is rapidly changing the publishing industry. This is a particular challenge for a journal such as the CJE. The Canadian Economics Association is based on geography – on the idea of Canadian economists getting together. In an electronic world, geography is less important – it is as easy to e-mail a co-author in Victoria as to walk down the hallway and talk to the co-author in the same department. Yet as Canadian economists, we do have common concerns with Canadian economic issues. We want and need a place to publish our papers that use Canadian data. If you have ideas about how the CJE can or should be evolving in response to changing publishing technology, please contact myself at frances_woolley@carleton.ca, or the CJE editor, Dwayne Benjamin, at dwayne.benjamin@utoronto.ca. In the meantime, we have extended the on-line only option to students and retired members, and lowered most other on-line only prices, to pass on cost savings to our members.
